Expedition Health cost $8.7 million to develop, design, and build. The Denver Museum of Nature & Science recognizes each of the following donors for their generous contribution to the exhibition.

PRESENTING SPONSOR: KAISER PERMANENTE COLORADO

Kaiser Permanente Colorado generously donated $4 million to the Museum and is the presenting sponsor of Expedition Health.

Kaiser Permanente Colorado has been improving the health of Coloradans for 40 years. With close to 500,000 members in Denver, Boulder, and Southern Colorado, Kaiser Permanente focuses on prevention as well as managing disease and looking at health from a full 360-degree angle including mind, body, and spirit. Kaiser Permanente Colorado's founding principles of partnership, integration, and prevention have withstood the test of time and continue to drive its success.

With its significant support of Expedition Health, Kaiser Permanente Colorado is inviting the state's residents and visitors to participate in a whole new journey to good health. Kaiser Permanente Colorado believes that focusing its efforts on the well-being of all residents is vital to the future of healthy living throughout the state.

"Kaiser Permanente Colorado's commitment to total health goes far beyond our members; it also means improving the health of our communities," said Donna Lynne, DrPH, president of Kaiser Permanente Colorado. "This innovative exhibition will educate the community about how they can take proactive steps to live well—from getting outside and enjoying nature, to being more active through hiking, to simple steps such as using sunscreen. We are proud to support Expedition Health and make Colorado a place to thrive."

Expedition Health is part of an overall Health Sciences Initiative that includes educational programming, web-based programming, research, special events, and other programs. In order to sustain and operate the exhibit and reach the goals of the overall initiative, the Museum will continue to raise endowment, program, and capital funds on an ongoing basis.

Many opportunities are available for individuals, corporations, foundations, and organizations to support this effort, from sponsoring exhibition components to purchasing a BodyTrek Theater seat or inscribing a tile for the Summit Campaign. Gifts will support the Museum's ongoing efforts of bringing relevant and exciting health programs to families and school children for many years to come. For additional information on these opportunities, please see www.dmns.org or call the Development Office at 303.370.6452.
